

Read through the Tweets and information found below about George. Talk about why you think George is a good role model.

20-year-old George Webster is the latest presenter to join the CBeebies House. George's job will be to help introduce TV shows and to have fun with the audience. Lots of people were excited to hear about George's new role when it was announced on social media. This is because George has Down's syndrome, a condition that's not often given representation in the media.

...

...

Barry-John Kelly @barryjohnk · Sep 21 Replying to @CBeeblesHQ

I have always liked to think of myself as a supporter of diversity and equality; however, until 16 months ago when my son EoIn was born with DS, I did not realise the importance of role models. Thank you @CBeeblesHQ and George for allowing EoIn (and his dad) to dream.

Ellie  $(0 \cdot 0)$   $(0 \cdot 0)$

Wow this is amazing so happy for George he fully deserves it! • my name is Ellie and my dream job would be a tv presenter for cbbc or CBeebies I'm autistic and have other disabilities and I love how you are accepting everyone nowadays with disabilities it makes me so happy •

Natasha Meddeman @NatashaMeddeman - Sep 22 Replying to @CBeeblesHQ

CBeebiesHQ Now this is the kind of world most of us thought we'd be living in by now! A world where people's talents, personalities and kindness make them stand out instead of their differences, colour or religion. Go CBeebies- Go George Remember guys...you can be anything 12

Emily @EmilyMcAllister · Sep 21 Replying to @CBeebiesHQ

I can't begin to explain how much this means to me. My daughter is 16 and 16years ago people with Downs Syndrome were not present on our TV screens it make my heart happy that this is changing. I really hope George becomes a permanent presenter 🚅